U.S. Bomb May Have Hit Soviets

Second Incident At Viet Harbor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon, in the second such admission this month, conceded today American bombers might have hit a Soviet ship as they attacked Haiphong harbor oil installations.

The statement from the Defense Department followed quickly on the heels of an announcement from Moscow that a "resolute protest" had been lodged over such an incident.

The U.S. statement. "During an attack on the Haiphong petroleum storage facilities located in the dock area in Haiphong two U.S. aircraft assigned to protect the bombing planes from ground air defenses attacked an air defense site approximately 500 yards from the location of the ship which the Soviets state was damaged. NOT DELIBERATE

"Although pilots are under instructions to avoid Soviet shipping, it is possible that certain of the ordnance directed at the anti-aircraft site fell on the ship.

"Commanders have been asked to examine flight paths and poststrike photography to obtain all possible information on the incident."

It was the second U.S. admission this month that American bombers may have hit a Soviet vessel in a North Vietnam harbor.

The Russians charged June 2 that American planes had bombed the Soviet ship Turkistan in the North Vietnamese harbor of Cam Pha.

The United States first denied that had occurred but later conceded the Turkistan might have been struck during a raid on North Vietnamese anti-aircraft installations.

The U.S. statement on that case, issued June 20, expressed regrets and offered assurance that efforts would be made to avoid more such incidents.

As in the Turkistan case, the Russians demanded "strict punishment" of the U.S. airmen. In the earlier incident the State Department only said it had taken note of the punishment demand.

Today's note, given to Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson in Moscow, did not renew the previous Soviet threat to take "appropriate measures to ensure the safety of its ships." But it did say: "The Soviet government with all seriousness warns that the responsibility for the dangerous, piratical actions of the American Air Force will lie upon the government of the United States."

MERCHANT SHIP Moscow identified the ship in the new incident as the merchant vessel Mikhail Frunze and gave the date as Thursday.

It made no mention of any personnel injuries but said the ship had been damaged by an antipersonnel bomb, of a type used to help silence anti-aircraft installations.

In the Turkistan case the Russians said one crew member was killed and several injured. Saigon dispatches said the targets of the bombing were on the south bank of the Kua Kam River, Haiphong's artery to the sea. The city itself lies on the south bank, and ships often are moored up and down the river, outside the immediate harbor installation.

Precise bombing targets were identified in the Saigon reports as the Loi Dong fuel storage area, about 3.7 miles from the center of Haiphong, and the Cong My transshipment point, about half a mile farther out.

STATE INCOME TAX: IT'S NOW OR NEVER

House Asks For Time Change

Resolution Passed To Put State In Central Zone

LANSING (AP)—A resolution urging the federal government to put all of Michigan in the Central Time Zone moved half-way through the Legislature Thursday.

The House passed the measure 58-37 and sent it to the Senate. Even if approved by the Senate and sent to Washington, the resolution would have no legal status. It would only advise the U.S. Department of Transportation of the Legislature's feelings.

RUNNING BATTLE The Legislature tried earlier this session to leave Michigan on Eastern Standard Time the year around, but was stymied by a successful petition drive aimed at putting the state on Daylight Saving Time from May through October.

Thursday's House-passed resolution said most of Lower Michigan is geographically in the Central Time Zone, and that under the 1886 Federal Uniform Time Act, the Upper Peninsula has been placed there already.

Meanwhile, Detroit Democratic Rep. James Del Rio threw a momentary scare into House leaders by threatening to hold the income tax bill which the chamber passed early Thursday in the House until after today's session.

He gave up the idea after a lengthy huddle with Democratic Leader William Ryan, then tried to overturn the 52-44 vote by which the controversial measure passed. The move drew only a handful of votes.

COLLEGE DISTRICT The House also rejected an attempt by a group of suburban Detroit legislators to enable the Wayne County communities outside Detroit to establish their own community college district, excluding Detroit.

The Senate had refused to accept the idea, and the House voted 61-41 to agree with the Senate.

The suburban lawmakers predicted Detroiters would continue to vote against millage increases needed to set up a college.

An attempt to take up the Legislature's Sunday liquor bill failed 51-53.

A majority vote is needed to consider the tabled measure, which would allow county supervisors to legalize by-the-glass liquor sales on Sunday without a vote of the people.

Passed, meanwhile, was a Senate-approved measure creating a State Board of Safety Compliance and Appeals to set and enforce standards for safe working conditions.

JUST TOO MUCH
Some Days Everything Is Wrong... But This!

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Ramirez, 19, drove to the courthouse Thursday to fight a traffic ticket. As the case was about to be called he realized his parking meter was running out. He asked the judge for time. Granted. Joe raced out and started across the street when a policeman grabbed him for jay walking. He gave Joe a ticket and a long lecture. So long was the lecture that a meter maid got to his car before Joe did. She gave him a ticket and ignored his plea.

When he got back to court the judge had gone to lunch. Joe fed the meter diligently until his honor returned. "With my luck I knew the verdict before the judge pronounced it—'Guilty. $5 or one day in jail,'" Joe said. Joe went to pay the fine and found only $2 in his wallet. The clerk let him go on his promise to pay. When Joe got home to Jericho, Long Island, he found a letter. "Greetings," it said, report for induction in the U.S. Army July 20.

Tug-Of-War Develops Over Who Handles Funeral

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The once-beautiful body of buxom Jayne Mansfield, victim of a violent highway collision, lay today in the white-tiled morgue here as a quiet tug-of-war over her funeral developed.

Matt Cimber, estranged third husband of the 34-year-old actress, rushed here after her death Thursday and said he would plan the funeral.

Husband No. 2, movie musician Mickey Hargitay, also flew here. He went first to the bedside of their three children — injured when the car carrying Miss Mansfield rammed the rear of a big truck east of the city.

Hargitay said his former wife's mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Peers of Dallas, Tex., also had come here about Miss Mansfield's funeral.

He said it would be private. (See back page, sec. 1, col. 4)

JAYNE'S SON: Mickey Hargitay Jr., 6-year-old son of Jayne Mansfield and musician Mickey Hargitay, is shown being carried into New Orleans hospital Thursday. Zoltan, a brother and a sister were injured in traffic accident that took the lives of their mother and two men. Deadline Tonight At Midnight

Senate Backers Try To Scrape Up 20 Votes

By WILLIAM HEATH
LANSING (AP)—Under pressure of a midnight deadline, fiscal reform backers worked feverishly today to put together the necessary 20 Senate votes to approve Michigan's first state income tax.

The Senate deferred action Thursday night when it became apparent that it lacked votes to pass the House-approved tax program designed to raise $269 million a year.

Senate majority leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, said however that he believed that by midnight tonight "we will pass an income tax with a combination of votes from both parties."

PASSED BY HOUSE The plan, approved by the House 62-44 Wednesday night, would levy a 2.6 per cent personal income tax, a 5.6 per cent corporate income tax and a 1 per cent tax on financial institutions.

The Senate approved earlier Senate approval of House spending bills making $1.6 billion budget for fiscal 1968.

Republican Gov. George Romney has warned that an "austerity" budget will be necessary if a revenue-increasing fiscal reform plan is not approved by the Legislature by midnight—the end of the fiscal year.

Lockwood emerged from a two-hour GOP caucus Thursday night and announced that a vote would be delayed until today because the votes were lacking and Democratic tax supporters desired further talks.

LOCKWOOD STATEMENT "We're going to vote as soon as we have 20 votes and not a minute after," Lockwood told newsmen. "I would have been glad to do it tonight but didn't because we didn't have the votes and in deference to the Democrats."

Lockwood indicated that the bipartisan Senate taxation Committee had met, found few objections to the House plan embodied in amendments to an earlier Senate-approved bill and agreed to act by midnight tonight.

The original Senate bill passed on May 18 with six Democratic senators joining 16 Republicans in the 22-16 vote.

Lockwood discounted reports that provisions of the House plan have caused original GOP and Democratic tax supporters to hesitate in casting "yes" votes.

"Although we haven't counted noses, I don't think we have necessarily less or more than last time," he said.

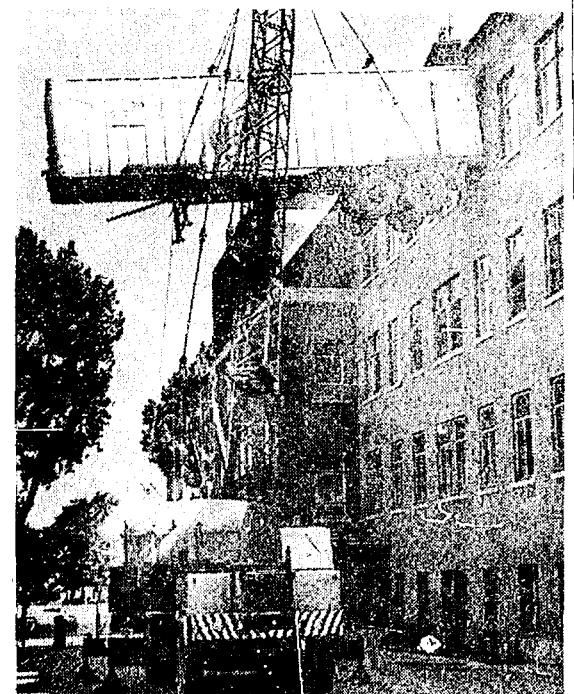

REFERENDUM ISSUE Major Republican opposition seemed to center around a House provision apparently designed to insure that the tax program could not be put to a

Ambulance Service Approved

The Berrien board of supervisors shortly after 11 o'clock this morning approved arrangements for county-wide ambulance service by the Berrien Ambulance Co. Two bases of operation are to be rented by the county for six months at a cost of $1,200, one in the twin cities area and the other in the Niles-Buchanan area.

Funeral directors of the county are discontinuing ambulance service at midnight tonight. It was not immediately clear if the new firm could put emergency vehicles into operation for the upcoming weekend.

Good Man Leaving Town

Whirlpool Corporation which has developed more than its fair share of executive talent in the past two decades is losing another capable manager.

Richard A. Seagraves is giving up a critical spot in the St. Joseph division's engineering section to take over the management of an ordnance plant at Charleston, W. Va., The plant, a division of the fast growing Food Machinery Corporation, employs twice as many people as the St. Joseph division when the latter is not on strike.

Seagraves is an exception to those in his profession. Few engineers branch away from their field and even fewer get into public service work.

Dick's upper echelon bosses, Bill Mahaffey and Elisha Gray II happen to be examples of that statement and Seagraves himself is another.

Two years ago he was prominent in pointing out some of the fallacies behind a proposed water plant for St. Joseph and Lincoln townships.

The voters buried that one by overwhelming margins in both areas, but they did not follow on in St. Joseph township in the next year when he led a move to install some new faces on the township board.

Just a few weeks ago the voters in the Benton Harbor school district rejected a far reaching plan to enlarge its physical plant.

The school people called on Seagraves to chair a public committee to drum up support for the proposition.

Although it lost, everyone connected with the proposal voiced praise for his labors. When the program is re-submitted in the future, as it must be if the system is not to fall apart, the chances are good that a successor chairman of a Citizens Committee will borrow liberally from his ideas.

It was our privilege, as a resident in the Benton Harbor district, to work under his direction in the school battle, and while we hate to say it, the fact remains that the Twin Cities' loss soon will be Charleston's gain.

TV Fights Big Brotherism

Spearheaded by the Columbia Broadcasting System, the radio and television industry is baring its collective teeth at the Federal Communications Commission.

Two weeks ago the FCC's seven members voted unanimously to require a station accepting cigarette commercials to permit an opponent of smoking free time to point out the potential health hazard in taking a puff.

The surprise ruling did say a station need not allow any and all crackpots and health faddists the chance to grab the microphone. It suggested that possibly some recognized organization such as the American Cancer Society might be the medium to speak for all opponents to smoking.

The opinion is an extension of the "fairness doctrine" in broadcasting which requires a station to provide equal time for all shades of opinion on public issues if the station opens its facilities to one exponent on those issues.

The rationale of the ruling is that Congress has recognized a health controversy surrounds cigarette smoking by requiring the cigarette manufacturer to print a hazard warning on the package. Therefore, by accepting cigarette commercials the broadcaster is obligated to air the health side of the smoking dispute.

The real reason for the ruling probably is bureaucratic back scratching. Despite the U.S. Public Health disclosures on lung cancer and the Congressionally mandated imprinting on cigarette packages, Americans are smoking more "coffin nails," as they once were called, than ever.

We have no pipeline to the Washington agencies, but the FCC opinion has every earmark of one agency calling upon another to help out with the former's ideology.

The broadcasters have every right to feel alarm. Although the FCC was careful to say it was speaking out on only one controversial product, the industry believes it would be only a step to giving Ralph Nader, the auto safety crank, or the WCTU free time to dispute the pleasures of driving a car or sipping a can of beer.

In fact, there is hardly a product on the market which some nut will not claim is injurious to the public health, safety or morals.

If the opponents to everything from mini skirts to life insurance must be given free time to air their opinions, radio and TV is in for a rough time indeed.

Congress adopted the Communications Act 40 years ago at the request of Herbert Hoover, then President.

Hoover was an engineer and he was rightfully alarmed over the proliferating growth in radio stations and conflicting wave lengths.

Hoover told Congress that unless the federal government stepped in above the states as an overall licensor of station wave lengths the aid would become a pirate's den.

In response to a purely electronic requirement, Congress declared the air to be in the public domain and that stations shall be licensed or thrown off the air for "the public convenience, interest or necessity."

It created the FCC to administer the new statute and included in the basic law a provision specifically prohibiting the FCC from exercising censorship.

Nobody at the time gave much thought to programming, but by the end of World War II the FCC had evolved the theory that a station's program content is a controllable item under the "public convenience, interest or necessity" clause.

It developed the fairness doctrine first in relation to political candidates. If a station allowed one candidate to speak, it must give his opponent equal time.

In recent times it has extended the fairness doctrine to a more shadowy concept, namely, public issues. If WHFB or WJSM, for example, permit the bird watchers to speak on a Save Grande Mere theme, then they must allow the sand miners the opportunity to expound on the virtues of industrializing the area.

Technically, this is not the censorship forbidden under the Communications Act and until the cigarette ruling came out the broadcasting industry viewed the fairness doctrine as a nuisance rather than a threat.

The threat goes deeper than harassment of one industry. It is a big step toward Washington feeding the public what it feels the latter should be fed.

The censorship is there in its most insidious form.

Cold War Nightmare

The dreamlike, if not nightmare, quality of the cold war has been emphasized again with the disclosure that the United States was prepared early this year to assist Russia in improving the accuracy of its guided missiles.

The shipment was stopped only by the last minute protest of a Congressman.

Perhaps because of a lack of knowledge, the Commerce Department approved the shipment of a $10,200 gravity meter to Poland. The gravity meter is a unique American scientific instrument conceded to be of vital military value in missile warfare. Its major purpose is to provide data for guided missile trajectory determination.

By no stretch of the imagination should increased trade with Russia and its satellites advocated by the administration include instruments which would improve Russia's capability to make war.

The incident points to one of the problems involved in trading with the Russians at all.

MEMORY'S ATTIC RESTORED

I once fondly wrote of my attic of memory, Where the glint of the sun from the dying day Cast a glow on my precious store of treasures That I had saved and stored away.

Well, I finally cleaned out my attic room, Threw out the dusty books and the withered rose, The album of photographs, and relics from the past, Where they all came from, no one really knows, But I decided that they must go.

Out went the incense burner from far Japan, Out went the fragment of dinosaur bone, And the faded collection of postage stamps, The statues of brass and of polished stone, The box of tin soldiers, the model airplanes I made, To pass the time when I was just a small boy, Now covered with dust, broken and useless they seem, But I recall the days when they brought such joy, The fondness once held for such useless things, Old arrowheads, a broken kite, a rubber ball, Bright feathers that once graced a peacock's wings.

Now, out by the alley, these treasures await, For the trash man to come and take them away, Although I worked hard from dawn until dusk, I finally cleaned out my attic today. Then, alone I sat in the empty room, Looked at the bare space, and, filled with regret, The house seemed to lack a soul now, but wait... The trashman hasn't gone to make his rounds... yet. Then, out to the alley, like a madman I ran, To salvage my keepsakes, racing against time, I replaced each item as it had been before, (I never could part with these treasures of mine.) They tell me I'm sentimental, and 'tis true, Now as I survey my worthless memory-ward, But how proudly I cherish these worthless things, And my attic of memory is again restored!

speaking of YOUR HEALTH

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.

Every night my three-year-old daughter suddenly awakens screaming in terror. This has been going on for about one year and does not seem to affect her during the day. She plays and is happy and does not remember the terrifying experience of the night before.

We don't know whether these are nightmares or night terrors, if there is such a difference. We have tried to talk about it, but she blocks it out so completely that we do not force the issue. Nevertheless, we are at our wit's end as to how to proceed.

Mrs. J.H. Dr. Colman
New York

Dear Mrs. H.: Psychiatrists who are interested in this problem have made some kind of a technical distinction between nightmares and night terrors. The distinction is not sufficiently great, yet, for the record, I will try to show the difference.

A nightmare can really be classed as a bad dream and one that may be associated with a sense of suffocation or personal injury. A child usually remembers the bad or frightening dream and will talk about it and be comforted by expressing it.

Night terrors are somewhat different. The child may suddenly scream out and when the parents try to comfort her she may actually not recognize them.

In many instances, she may not even remember that it occurred and she takes a considerable amount of time to calm down and be comforted by the parents. Even when the child returns to complete consciousness the fear may persist for a considerable length of time.

So much for the hazy difference between these two similar evidences of emotional trouble.

The fact that she plays and is happy during the day tends to make the parents forgetful of last night's bad experience. The result is that professional help is very often delayed because of the "this too shall pass" belief.

A year is a long time in the life-cycle of anyone. It is a very long time in the life cycle of a three-year-old. To wait for the possibility that these night-mares might disappear of their own accord is to court trouble.

Certainly, if your child had had any physical illness for a year you would have consulted as many doctors as necessary to find the basis for it. Yet, you, as many other parents do, are lax about seeking the help of a psychiatrist or psychologist in an effort to uncover the reason for these unpleasant night experiences.

Anxiety within the home, rivalry with other children and special tensions may be some of the causes for night disturbances. The problem may not be a very complicated one and with a little bit of direction the entire problem may be solved.

It must be emphasized that sometimes the nightmares seem to disappear only to crop up in other forms of anxiety if the basic reason is not understood. There are now many tests that can be done, even in a three-year-old child, that can point to the source of the problem. It is often astonishing how quickly the well-trained psychologist or psychiatrist can uncover the difficulties.

Parents are too intimately involved in the problem to be able to solve it alone. Don't try it. It only delays seeking the help she needs and deserves.

CONTRACT BRIDGE...

By R. Jay Becker

You are South, neither side vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♣	Pass	?	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠A8652 ♥4 ♣Q72 ♦K943
2. ♠Q7643 ♥J63 ♦K82 ♦75
3. ♠AK984 ♥743 ♦K982 ♦A6
4. ♠AK97 ♥82 ♦Q92 ♦A875

1. Five clubs. It is a basic principle that the value of a hand rises or falls as the bidding progresses and new information comes to light. Thus, the hand, standing by itself, would not be especially attractive if partner opened the bidding with a heart, but it gains considerably in stature when partner opens with a club. Even so, when you respond one spade, you cannot be sure of a game, as the club bid may have been based on minimum high-card values and 4-3-3 or 4-4-3-2 distribution.

But when partner now jumps to three clubs, showing about an ace more than a minimum opening bid and a long club suit as well, the hand rises dramatically in value and you should assume that there is not only a game but a reasonable chance for a slam.

The best way of registering these thoughts is by jumping to five clubs. If the ace of spades were, say the queen or jack, you would bid only four clubs, but, having the ace, you are entitled to jump to five and inferentially suggest a slam.

2. Pass. The three club bid is not forcing; it merely urges you to bid again. There are other bids North could make if your meager values were enough to produce a game. Since you lack the values for a second bid, the best thing to do is pass.

3. Three diamonds. Here you have every reason to think there is a game—North is likely to have 17 to 19 points, counting his distribution—but you can't tell at this point whether the best contract lies in a suit or in notrump. You therefore bid three diamonds, drawing as clear a picture of your hand as you can, and hope that this will enable partner to choose the right contract.

4. Six clubs. There is nothing scientific about bidding the slam, but the odds clearly favor making it. There are very few hands North can have which will offer a good play for slam, and quite a few where twelve tricks are certain. When you have an opening bid of your own and partner opens and then follows with a strong rebid, you are on the verge of a slam. The best thing to do in most cases is to up and bid it.

BORN TODAY

American song stylist Lena Horne was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1917. By the time she was 3 her parents had been divorced and she spent her childhood living with friends and relatives in cities from Brooklyn to Atlanta and Miami, as her a mother-cousin could not work and care for her properly at the same time.

At 16 Miss Horne decided to leave school and get a job. Through her mother's connections she landed a place in the chorus line of Harlem's famous Cotton Club.

For the next two years she danced, sang solos, and appeared briefly in a short-lived Broadway play.

Though her experience was limited, she attracted the attention of actor Flourney Miller, who recommended her to band-leader Noble Sissle. In 1936 she began a road tour with her band.

When Miss Horne left the Sissle band to appear in Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds of 1938" revue, she had acquired a great deal of experience and some small fame as a singer.

In 1940 she was singing with Charles Barnet's band, but her real success began the following year with an engagement at New York City's Cafe Society Downtown and a subsequent concert at Carnegie Hall.

Since, she has appeared in many movies, clubs, a Broadway musical, "Jamaica," and written two autobiographies.

A versatile singer, Miss Horne probably belongs on the far side of the somewhat nebulous line between "jazz" and "popular," but her rich, sensitive voice reveals a deep affection for her jazz background and associations.

Others born today include East Germany's Walter Ulbricht, conductor Wilfried Peltier, actress Susan Hayward and actor Walter Hampden.

Unusual Sounds His Specialty

Comic To Appear At S.J. Concerts

Wes Harrison, "Mr. Sound Effects," will join the St. Joseph Municipal band at its two appearance Sunday and between the two some musical and unusual sound will emerge. The concerts are scheduled for 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. at the bandshell located at the end of Pleasant street on Lake boulevard.

Director John E.N. Howard said Harrison needs no music, no special lights and carries his own equipment — a microphone. With his vocal chords and microphone he provides one of the most unusual novelty acts in the world — sound effects and comedy that are difficult to believe even though you see it performed in front of you.

Howard reported Harrison has been featured on many nationwide television shows and has provided special effects for Walt Disney productions and Tom and Jerry cartoons.

For musical entertainment the band will play "The Roman Carnival Overture" by Hector Berlioz; a paraphrase of the hymn, "God of Our Fathers"; a modern setting of "Yankee Doodle"; by Morton Gould and several marches including a request for Twin City composer Fred Noll's "Michigan Triumphant."

Raymond Norberg, director of the Fairplain junior high school bands and orchestras, will conduct the band in an accompaniment to a clarinet solo by Howard, the regular conductor of the municipal band. This will introduce Norberg to concert audiences as he prepares to take over the conducting for the next two concerts while Howard is in Chicago attending the 50th anniversary convention of the International Association of Lions clubs. Howard was district governor of Southwestern Michigan Lions clubs this past year.

Young expressed pleasure with the appointment to the state post. He hopes to do appellate work. But he also said he regrets leaving here, too. "I've enjoyed my association with the (Feldman) firm."

Both Attorney and Mrs. Young are natives of the east central section of Michigan. He hails from Fenton and she from Howell.

The negotiating committees met Wednesday afternoon to discuss vacation pay. When Whirlpool stated its position, the meeting continued through the night with discussion on the union contract. The meeting adjourned about 7:30 p.m. yesterday.

Two New Agencies Admitted

Cite Need For Exceeding Request Again This Year

United Community Fund yesterday established a record goal of $505,000 for next fall's campaign and admitted two new agencies to UCF.

The Michigan chapter of the National Hemophilia Foundation and the Southwestern Michigan Better Hearing Association are the new United Fund services, bringing the total of UCF agencies to 53.

Members of the board of directors of Twin Cities Community Chest voted to admit the new services and set the UCF goal at their monthly meeting, held at the UCF office in the YWCA, St. Joseph.

The 1967 campaign goal is 5.7 per cent higher than the $477,498 pledged to the United Fund last year. Despite the increase of nearly $28,000 over the 1966 total, Campaign Chairman Jack Hamilton emphasized that the $505,000 figure would meet only the "minimum needs" of UCF agencies during 1968.

"We need to go over our goal again this fall," Hamilton said. "Many of our agencies have had their budget requests slashed and some will be applying for increases after next fall's campaign is over."

Total requests of UCF agencies came to $555,589. On June 12, the budget committee of the Community Chest, headed by Jay Sterling, recommended total allocations for 1968 of $505,578. The figure was further cut by the Chest executive committee in bringing the total goal down to $505,000.

Decision On Nursery Postponed

Planners Listen To Debate On St. Joe Project

The St. Joseph Planning commission postponed action on a nursery school and expansion of the urban renewal area yesterday.

One tabling motion led to the other. After the planners listened for an hour to a debate on the proposed nursery school they decided it was too late to take up the urban renewal area expansion which was what the meeting had originally been called for.

With eight residents of Vail court in the audience, the approval and subsequent reversal by a special use permit by the city commission drew immediate attention.

ACTION CALLED ILLEGAL Atty. Thomas McCoy contended that once the city commission had approved the project, as it did June 19, that it was unlawful to rescind its act as was done June 26.

But McCoy said his client, Richard Ludwig, 1920 Sunset Court, had no objection to postponing the planning commission hearing on the matter.

Ludwig explained the nursery school plan to the planning commission June 15. The planners approved the idea of a special use permit for the northwest corner of Vail Court and Lake Shore drive and sent it on to the city commission.

Earl Grant, M. J. Smith and Fred Fenderson, Vail court residents, complained that residents of that street did not know about the nursery school plans until they had read it in the newspapers.

McCoy retorted that his client had not been notified of the city commission's reversal.

Chairman Neil Berndt said the planners do not poll adjoining property owners and do not advertise in advance the agenda of meetings. Berndt also said the lot had been empty for many years, that it does not appear to be a prime residential site and that the nursery school seemed like an ideal solution.

TELL OBJECTIONS

Residents said they objected to the commercial nature of the enterprise, that it would devalue their residential property, that they feared additional traffic and they have a group of apartment houses in back of them and they were not too happy with that development.

McCoy, who said he had little time to prepare his case, said his client had gone to some expense on the strength of the city commission's approval and argued that the commission could not reverse itself so abruptly.

Urban Renewal Director C. Thomas Daley, present to explain a plan to add another lot to the urban renewal area, was told to come back in three weeks.

AAA Plans Refund On Insurance

First Break In Rising Rates

The first reversal of the 10-year trend of rising automobile insurance rates will be made by the Automobile Club of Michigan, according to Ray E. Miller, manager of the Twin Cities division.

He said a 10 per cent refund will be made on 1966-67 premiums and a small reduction made in rates for comprehensive and uninsured motorist coverage.

Miller said the refund on 1966-67 policies will amount to $89,062 to auto owners insuring with AAA in this area.

The refund and small rate cut, he said, is the result of fewer and less serious claims this year. Miller noted there has been a 19 per cent reduction in traffic fatalities in Michigan for this year.

Benton Harbor firemen late yesterday afternoon extinguished a gasoline blaze in the basement of the Spielmann Vinegar Co., 270 Eighth street, and reported there was no damage.

Trapped By Fighting In Jordan

Dr. Horn Of Andrews Tells Of Bombing

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Dr. Siegfried Horn, chairman of the Old Testament department of the Seventh-day Adventist Theological seminary, is back at Andrews university here with vivid memories of the Israeli-Arab war.

The Israeli "blitzkrieg" canceled his planned archaeological expedition to Heshbon in Jordan where he planned to unearth evidences of Bible culture and bring them back to the university for study.

Instead, Dr. Horn brought back sharp remembrances of watching a direct hit on the Church of the Dormition, traditional site of Christ's Last Supper, passing a Jerusalem hotel at the moment NBC newsmen Ted Yates was killed and seeing a six-truck Jordanian caravan burst into flames from Israeli plane strafing minutes after he passed the convoy.

ARRIVES IN BEIRUT

When Dr. Horn arrived in Beirut, Lebanon, on May 25, evacuation of American citizens had already begun, and by the time he got to Jerusalem, headquarters of the American School of Oriental Research which was supplying the complete camp for the expedition plus the necessary tools, the hotels were empty and evacuation was in full swing.

After contacting government officials and personnel at the American embassy, Horn decided on June 2 to cancel the expedition. He sent out telegrams, dispatched workmen to Heshbon to dismantle the camp, paid bills, and made reservations for a plane leaving Monday afternoon, June 5.

"After finishing my business Monday morning, I went to the American School of Oriental Research at about 9 a.m. and was told that war had commenced," Horn said. "I treated it as a joke at first. There had been incidents there the previous week. The school is only about three hundred yards from the Israeli border. Around 10 a.m., we noticed that a gun was being mounted on the roof of the Italian Hospital just over the border. It was pointed directly at the school."

SHOOTING STARTS

As Dr. Horn, and the director of the school with his family left in the only taxi they had been able to find in an hour of searching, the shooting at the border started. They encountered intensive shooting along the entire route which took them between Mt. Scopus held by the Israelis and the Old City of Jerusalem held by the Jordanians and over the Mount of Olives.

Arriving at the Amman airport, they found that no planes were leaving. The American Embassy directed them to the Intercontinental Hotel, the luxury hotel in the city where all foreigners were staying. "As we arrived at the hotel," Dr. Horn said, "we saw the start of the Israeli air attack on the airport. The planes started by bombing the runways, continued with all the planes, even the private one owned by the British attaché, and finished by destroying the fuel depots. As if to show that they could bomb anything they wanted, they fired one shot through the palace of the king."

The foreigners spent six days in the hotel, guarded for their own protection, "since anti-American and anti-British feeling was very high. The 50 journalists in the hotel were just as isolated as everyone else, being able to get some news only twice — once when the king read a statement, but refused to answer questions, and a second time when they were taken to a hospital to see

DR. SIEGFRIED HORN Watched Holy War

FOREIGNERS EVACUATED

Evacuation took place Sunday, June 11, with the evacuees being taken from the hotel before dawn so that the local population wouldn't know they were leaving. Corners were guarded by soldiers and tanks as the caravan of about a thousand persons passed.

All airports had been put out of commission by the Israelis, but some patching had been done. However, the government would allow only Red Cross planes to land. To meet this problem, the United States Air Force painted out the markings on several of their planes and painted on Red Cross markings. Pilots wore white overalls to which red crosses had been attached. "The whole evacuation was a masterpiece," Dr. Horn declared.

The foreigners were taken to Tehran, Iran. From there, Dr. Horn flew to Istanbul, where he spent the next ten days.

Commenting on the future, Dr. Horn stated, "Any prediction of the future would be very difficult. It looks dark, but some solution must be found to establish normal relations with the countries of the Midwest. I expect to be able to go back sometime, and in fact I hope to be able to work at Heshbon next year."

Wants Cass Back On Fast Time

Grady Seeks Board Meeting

CASSOPOLIS — Dowagiac Supervisor Glenn Grady said he planned to file petitions today for a special meeting of Cass county supervisors at which the board will be asked to put the county back on fast time.

County Clerk Kenneth Poe said seven supervisors or more than one-third of the board's 19 members must sign a petition for a special meeting. Poe said he must give supervisors ten days notice of such a session. That would mean the meeting could not be called until at least July 10.

Grady, in announcing he would try to have the board's resolution repealed, urged Cass county citizens to keep their clocks and watches on Eastern Daylight Saving time.

Nearly all of them have done so, despite the supervisors' unanimous resolution last Monday to put the county back on Eastern Standard time.

Cass county prosecutor Jerry O'Connor and Dowagiac City Atty. Herbert Philipson said that the resolution was invalid. And a deputy state attorney general reminded county residents and officials that Michigan's entire Lower Peninsula is on Daylight time under state and federal law.

Cass county's southern border is the Indiana state line and many Cass county residents work and do business in Elkhart and South Bend areas, now on Central Daylight time.

The Ontwa township board last week also adopted a slow time resolution. But it also was just regarded as a protest against fast time.

Arson Probed In Bertrand Area Blaze

A small wood frame building was destroyed by fire early today in Bertrand township, and Berrien county sheriff's deputies said arson is suspected.

The unoccupied two-story 34 by 48-foot structure was owned by the Ollie York estate and was located on Orange road near the Indiana-Michigan state line. By the time the Bertrand township fire department arrived on the scene, the building was completely wrapped in flame and was beyond saving. Firemen said that the fire began about 1:20 a.m.

Since the wooden structure was unoccupied and had no electricity, fire inspectors are investigating in an effort to learn if the blaze was deliberately set.

American Arabs Urge Neutrality

FLINT (AP)—A group representing 500,000 Americans of Arabic extraction in 13 midwestern states has urged the United States to take a position of "positive neutrality" in the Middle East crisis.

The group, Midwest Federation of American Syrian-Lebanese Clubs, asked President Johnson to honor the U.S. commitment to "protect the territorial integrity regarding the land the Arabs lost in the recent Middle East war."

Expecting Rush For Tariff Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential Office of Trade Negotiations braced itself today for a rush of industry and farm group representatives seeking details of new U.S. tariff cuts on import goods approaching $8-billion a year in value.

The U.S. cuts, averaging 35 per cent and ranging up to 50 per cent on many industrial products, were part of the reciprocal "Kennedy Round" agreement being signed by 53 nations at Geneva, Switzerland today.

The new tariff agreements were described officially Thursday as "the most comprehensive assault on barriers to international trade that has ever taken place."

But the massive listing of more than 4,000 pages of concessions, covering about $40 billion of trade worldwide, is not available yet to American foreign traders.

This information will be available in Washington next week and in published form in mid-July, said the office of William M. Roth, the President's special representative for trade negotiations.

Starting today, Roth's staff undertook to supply information on the new rates to those asking about specific items.

U.S. Planes Hit North

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes chopped up portions of a MIG aircraft west of Hanoi and blasted two supply targets on the outskirts of Haiphong Thursday.

U.S. headquarters reported pilots flew 152 missions over North Vietnam, the heaviest directed at supply facilities ringing North Vietnam's capital and its major port city.

Can't Delay Missile Defense, Says Military

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top U.S. military officers do not believe Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin has completely slammed the door on an anti-missile limitations pact but they say the United States has dickered with the Soviets over the issue long enough. "We can't keep on delaying indefinitely," a ranking general said in an interview. National security requires that the United States begin production of an anti-missile defense, he said.
